Organization

Message from the Minister

Paul Ramsey

Minister of Finance and Corporate Relations

Even before the report of the Enns panel was released in September 1999, this ministry had taken important steps to bring about greater transparency and openness to the budget process and the reporting of fiscal results and forecasts. I have ensured that the spirit of openness will continue with the introduction of the Budget Transparency and Accountability Act and the government's pre-budget consultation process, to name but two. I will also continue to encourage British Columbians to contact our ministry to share their views on the budgetary process and other economic matters.

This government and ministry have consistently upheld the priorities that matter most to the people of this province. While committed to building an economy that meets the challenges of the 21st century, we continue our support for health care, education, social services and other areas that reflect the day to day concerns of the majority of British Columbians. We have made important choices. Once again, these choices clearly benefit our province's greatest assets - the people of B.C. and the communities in which they live.

Minister of Finance and Corporate Relations

Message from Deputy Minister and Secretary to Treasury Board

During the fiscal year ending March 31, 2000, the ministry continued its evolution as a professional organization. The quest for improved accountability, client service and efficiency prompted the adoption of new technologies as well as new streamlined approaches to service delivery. The Corporate Accounting and Consumer Tax Branch systems achieved significant milestones during the 1999/2000 fiscal year that will in both cases yield ongoing benefits through internal government efficiencies and enhanced revenue collection.

We also continued to strengthen our Internet presence. As a key player in the standardization of all government Web pages, we improved the accessibility and clarity of information found on ministry and B.C. government sites. Building upon our technology base, the ministry will soon be well positioned to begin the implementation of an interactive service delivery model. This will eventually make the concept of e-government a reality.

As in previous years, the ministry continued to demonstrate its commitment to greater accountability through a wide variety of means. Several notable examples include: publication of ministry performance plans; more complete disclosure of budget assumptions; scheduled release of more detailed revised financial forecasts; and establishment of a new consumer tax advisory panel.

Key elements of the ministry's vision are improved communications links, client-centred thinking and promotion of a strong corporate culture based on respect, integrity, honesty and trust. Y2K is an example of how our organization must look to the future.

Chris Trumpy

Deputy Minister and Secretary to Treasury Board

Not only did this project produce an unprecedented level of co-operation and integration, it also enabled us, as a learning organization, to develop a better understanding of priorities, processes and responses to emergencies.

Looking again to the future, I remain confident that our greatest resource – our staff – will ensure that all current and future challenges will be met with energy, creativity and professionalism.

The following express our management philosophy:

Ministry Highlights 1999/2000

- Quarterly reports and Budget 2000 were prepared on a summary accounts basis, combining the accounts of the government and Crown corporations.
- The Budget Transparency and Accountability Act (Bill 2) was introduced in March 2000. The act is the key response to the auditor general's report on the estimates process and the subsequent report of the budget process review panel. Ministry-wide guidelines reflecting the panel's recommendations were prepared.
- The successful implementation of Y2K compliance programs and associated business continuation plans by the ministry ensured all systems functioned in the year 2000.
- Budget 99 was prepared, presented and implemented.
- New amendments to the Company Act permitted limited liability companies created outside of B.C. to register and carry on business in the province.
- Web page standards and frameworks for the ministry were developed. They are a step towards a single, government-wide policy in Web management and expansion of government Internet usage.
- An electronic application package for auditors and accountants, which will result in faster turnaround for clients, was developed.
- The annual BC Savings Bonds campaign raised $390 million from local investors. The total amount outstanding as of March 31, 2000 was $1.56 billion.
- The province saved $37.9 million by borrowing domestically as opposed to internationally and by issuing MTN's, as opposed to bonds ($13.7 million domestically and $24.2 million internationally).
- Remote registration in the personal property registry allowed 85 per cent of renewal transactions to be done electronically.
- The all-hazards business continuation plan identified critical business processes and recovery programs required for the province to function during any emergency.

Treasury Board Staff

Treasury Board Staff (TBS) is responsible for developing and reviewing the government's economic, social, fiscal, capital spending and taxation policies. It provides analysis, forecasts and advice to Treasury Board (the cabinet committee responsible for budget and management matters) and to the Minister of Finance and Corporate Relations.

TBS develops the provincial budget under the direction of Treasury Board. Throughout the fiscal year, it reviews requests to Treasury Board for additional operating and capital funding, monitors the status of the budget and, when necessary, recommends alternative fiscal management strategies.

TBS includes seven branches primarily related to the government's operating budget, and a separate capital division. The seven operating budget branches are: economic development policy; social policy; estimates and capital budget; program review; operations; taxation; and fiscal and economic analysis.

The Capital Division was established in April 1998 with responsibility for recommending to Treasury Board and cabinet policies and priorities for the preparation and delivery of the province's annual capital program. The capital program includes expenditures on social capital projects (i.e., universities, colleges, schools, hospitals, courts and correction facilities) and taxpayer-supported Crown corporations and agencies (i.e., BC Ferries, BC Transit, BC Transportation Financing Authority, BC Buildings Corporation and Rapid Transit Project 2000). This division is also responsible for overseeing the project financing and review of all social capital projects. A major priority for TBS throughout the year was the response to the auditor general's report on the estimates process and the subsequent report of the budget process review panel (the Enns report). By the nature of their responsibilities, several branches within TBS were heavily involved in responding to the recommendations in these reports, including supporting the drafting of the Budget Transparency and Accountability Act. TBS also commissioned a review by Deloitte Consulting to assess and strengthen the capital management process.
